CASTLE BETWEEN CAPE AND BEACH

Build Palatial Residence on Virginia Seashore.

Retired New Jersey Millionaire to

Will Try to Pull the Fannie Palmer From Her Bed of Sand on the Beach,

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., March 7.—A castle is the description given by the architect of the residence which Dr. John Miller Masury, the retired New Jersey millionaire paint manufacturer, will build on his farm of 175 acres, between Cape Henry and Virginia Beach. Preliminary sketches and first estimates place the cost of the building at $50,000, the most expensive and first estimates place the cost of the building at $50,000, the most expensive house of its kind in Tidewater Virginia. This cost does not include various outhouses, stables, servants' lodge, laundry, kennelsi and cow barns, that will cost several thousands more. The building will be of granite, and will contain three floors, on which will be enough room to satisfy every whim of a man of leisure. The house will be modeled after an old Scotch castle.

RIGGINS WILL SUE.

Hudson and Brothers hav list the cable to the big schooner Fannie Palmer, ashore below Virginia Beach, and will haul her off. This is the boat upon which the steamer Ariosoto's great anchor chain and also a new fifteen-inch cable will be used in pulling her off. There is a great profit in sight, should the Palmer be floated, as she cost $125,000 and is new.
